The Passion Play.

The Passion Play, which has been given ence every ten years in the little affiage of Oberammergau, a small town in the Bavarian Alps in Germany, since 1633, will be given this year from May until September. It is presented Sundays, Wednesday and Fridays, from 8 o'clock in the morning to 6 o'clock in the evening, with an intermission of two hours. The whole populace are practically in the play, over 500 people being grouped on the grent open stage. The coatumes are copies of famous pictures of Biblical scenes, and a considerable portion of the play is sung by great choruses.

Mr. L. D. Stone of Hartford, Conn., a world traveler and tour director, under the direct management of the Roston Travel society of Boston, Mass., will conduct a tour this summer which will include this miracle play. Party sails June 25th, returning Sept. 1st. For information and reservations write H. R. Gridley, Steampship and Tourist Agent, opp. City Hall, 26 State street, Hartford, Conn.—adv.

and many others. AUDITORIUM Changes Bill Today.

Did you ever see Wilton Lacaye, the great character actor, in his marvelous portrayal of Svengail, in the play of Trilby? Or the late Richard Mansfield in his greatest role of "Jekyll and Hyde?" Can you imagine David Warfield as the Music Master C? There is a man at the Auditorium this week who is giving a fine act in which he impersonates these characters in a painstaking manner. Walter Daniels is his name, and he is an actor of recognized ability in New York and London the dramatic centers of the world. Another act which has been winning much favor in vaudeville, and something seldom seen on the stage, is the singing and dancing number presented by the little Ma Belles sisters, two clever youngsters of only a few years. These little people are managed by William Coulson, who is with them constantly. Following somewhat on the same lines as the act presented by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young, who were have the first half of this week, will be the sketch introduced by Barr and Evans. The Rube and the Lady," playing here for the last half. These people are good performers and will surely make a hit.

These three acts, together with the Engene trio of comedy acrobats, who have had the whole town talking about Engene trio of comedy acrobats, who have had the whole town talking about their wonderful horizontal bar feats,

Attractive Bill of All-Feature Pictures. of the big features at the Breed r for today is the thrilling story Sea Islands, where is located in ien cave the treasures of an old a hidden cave the treasures of an old seafarer, who upon dying leaves the contents to two nephews. After a long and tempestuous voyage the nephews locate the cave, with the sid of a prominent native of the island. This native sees the opportunity to capture the whole of the treasures, and, acting upon a sudden impulse, gets the hunting party well in the cave and then closes the entrance, leaving the party to starve, and returns to his cabin and tells his daughters what he has done. They are greatly incensed, and secretly proceed to the cave and release the party, winning their eternal fayor, and are invited aboard the treasure boat, much to the disgust of their old murderous father. This is a powerful story of the South Sea, teeming with caption, intermingled with sensationalism and carrying a vein of polite comedy.

A brilliant Biograph picture is also Featured, and the wonderful film entitled The Suit Case Mystery.

Mr. Irving Joy, the new and pleasing tenor of the Breed, will sing the beautiful concert song. "You Are the Ideal of My Dreams," and the catchy illustrated song, "Waltz Me Till I'm Wearry, Dearie."

Dinner and Drama.

pon first consideration one sees what is grotesque in the war that on between the dinner and thema. But the fight assumes serious portions when we learn that a nich academician, Maurice Donmay, in the front of the battle, and that we make it is harranguing the lic. The point they make is, in f. that modern plays have detested because the modern audience is to the theater to digest its dinift doesn't wish to think; it can't blood is withdrawn from its brain angaged in duty elsewhere. Hence trivial, inferior play flourishes.

"The remedy will spring from the excess of the evil, and that the delay of dinner will abolish it. It will change its name and character. It will be supper. We shall no longer dine before going to the play; we shall simply swallow a cup of tea. Upon our return we shall sup. And these nocturnal repasts, animated by the sparklings of wit and champagne, will lead us back to the pleasant customs of the eighteenth century and will revive a chaming tradition."—Philadelphia Press.

A RIVER

A glimpse of the river—it glimmers. Through the stems of the besches: Through the stems of the willows M shimmers. In tow winding reaches: Plowing so softly that scarcely It seems to be flowing. But the reeds of the low, little Islands Are bent to its going.

And wort as the breath of a eleeper
Its hearing and sighing.
In the cover where the flowts of the lities
At anchor are lying.
It looks as if fallon asleep
In the lap of the meadows, and smill-Like a child in the grass, dreaming of the flowers and their golden be-guiling.

Heavy laden, it labors and spends
In a great strain of duty
The power that was gathered and
In the calm and the beauty,
Like thee, oh, my river, like thee,
May our lives in beginning and enduing,
Fair in their gathering be
And great in the time of their spending.
